Doctor of Medical Science

An online clinical doctoral program (30 credits)

Flexible options for working professionals: completed in one semester or within two years

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Shenandoah University's Division of Physician Assistant (PA) offers an innovative online graduate program leading to a Doctor of Medical Science (DMS) degree.

The Doctor of Medical Science program is designed to prepare graduate-level PAs with the advanced skills needed in today's dynamic healthcare environment as doctorally-prepared clinicians. The focus of this clinical doctorate program is to advance student knowledge in healthcare science, evidence-based practice, health equity and leadership. The program is offered fully online, with 100% of coursework completed asynchronously, allowing students the flexibility to earn this degree from any location.

PROGRAM PREREQUISITES

- Completion of a master's degree or a related PA master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.
- Completion of a Physician Assistant program.
- Admitted students must transfer 14 credits from master's degree.

ADMISSIONS REQUIREMENTS

- Graduate application and $30 application fee
- Unofficial transcripts from all previously attended institutions of higher education are required for initial review; official transcripts will be requested upon acceptance.
- Resume or C.V.
- Personal Statement (250-300 words): Why would you like to pursue the DMS degree at Shenandoah University?
- Language Proficiency requirement must be met. Submission of TOEFL, IELTS, PTE, or Duolingo English Test may be required. See our policy for full details: <https://www.su.edu/admissions/international-students>

CAREER OUTLOOK

In all areas of medicine including PA practice, there is a need for future leaders to advocate and shape the policies and programs that are impacting our local and global societies. The profession also needs practitioners who are prepared to design, conduct, and present new research that will advance the profession's understanding of evidence-based practice. Doctorally-prepared PAs have opportunities to advance in clinical, education, and non-clinical roles and expand the reach that PAs have in healthcare.
